ABOUT ME

I'm a Breakdancing Marine Biologist, turned Travel Filmmaker, Photographer, & Host. I started down this wild path by winning several travel video competitions including Flight Centre's "Best Travel Job Ever" and Cathay Pacific's "Travel the World in 80 Days".

Since, I've been travelling the world filming swimming pigs and exploding hammer festivals for my YouTube Channel, while also making creative short films for travel brands.

Adventure Travel is my specialty. SCUBA, hiking, biking, snowboarding, the more adrenaline the better. Also, I love capturing strange and unique places, festivals, and foods. These are a keen interest of mine, but also do well when shared. I love surprising the viewer, leaving them saying... "Whoa, this actually Exists?"

NOTABLE VIDEO PROJECTS

(YOU CAN CLICK ON THESE TO SEE MORE)

FILMMAKING: GERMANY 25 REUNIFIED

This was a large video and photo project I co-produced for the German National Tourism Board. We created 20+ videos telling stories of reunification from across the country, after the wall had fallen 25 years prior. These are very cinematic pieces, and showcase my filmmaking.

YOUTUBE: THE GLOWING BAY OF VIEQUES, PUERTO RICO

On the tiny island of Vieques, Puerto Rico, there is an amazing sight to see. The aptly named mosquito bay hides another secret; bioluminescent algae. This phenomenon had only been captured by National Geographic before I arrived with special gear to create this piece for my YouTube channel.

FACEBOOK: THE EXPLODING HAMMER FESTIVAL

One of the strangest festivals in the world, this amazing event happens on Fat Tuesday every year just north of Mexico City. Capturing this video was a little bit dangerous, but it paid off. Cutting the longer YouTube video into a 1 minute version with Text on Screen made it very sharable on Facebook

SCUBA: THE UNDERWATER MUSEUM

An amazing dive location just off the Caribbean coast of Mexico. Hundreds of human shaped concrete statues sit 10 meters below the surface. As I originally studied to be a marine biologist, creating underwater video content is one of my personal specialties.
